MANUSCRIPTS

Each manuscript should be sent either on a CD or electronically via email as an attachment.

COPYRIGHT

The submission of the manuscript by the authors means that the authors automatically agree to assign exclusive copyright to OHASA Journal if and when the manuscript is accepted for publication.

PEER REVIEW

Upon receipt by the Editor, manuscripts are sent to two independent referees approved by the Editor. Manuscripts will not be returned to authors.

LENGTH OF CONTRIBUTIONS

For research papers and case reports authors should ideally limit their work to 2,500 words. Tables and figures must be allowed for in the final count. (Approx. 100-500 words, depending on size).

TITLES

Titles must be descriptive and succinct.

ABSTRACTS

A structured abstract of research papers and case reports is required. It should include objectives, methods, results and conclusions and state the purpose of the study, basic procedures, main findings and principal conclusions. It may be up to 200 words and should be able to stand alone.

TABLES

Tables should be numbered consecutively with Arabic numerals. A caption should accompany each table.

ILLUSTRATIONS

Illustrations must be submitted in a format and quality suitable for reproduction – i.e., in the case of graphics, high resolution (300dpi) - in the journal. The Editor and Publisher reserve the right to reject illustrations or figures based upon poor quality of submitted materials. Appropriate consent must have been obtained by the author for any illustration showing a patient.

LEGENDS

Legends should be typed double-spaced in consecutive order on a separate page. They should be brief and specific.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Acknowledge persons who have made substantive contributions to the study. Authors are expected to disclose any commercial or other relationships that could constitute a conflict of interest.

REFERENCES

The author is responsible for the accuracy of the reference list at the end of the article. All references must be in the Vancouver style. Number references consecutively in the order in which they appear in the text and these numbers should appear as superscripts each time the author is cited. All references cited, and only these, must be listed at the end of the paper. This should include the names and initials of all authors unless they are more than six when only the first three should be given followed by et al in Italics The authors' names are followed by the title of the article; the title of the journal abbreviated according to the style of Index Medicus or the Index to Dental Literature; the year of publication; the volume number; first and last page numbers in full. Titles of books should be followed by the place of publication, the publisher and the year.
